

BOTTICINO

SKU: N/A

Coming from the town of the same name in the province of Brescia, BOTTICINO is one of the most widely used marbles for floor coverings and construction in general. The beige color and hazelnut colored veins make it look warm and elegant.

BOTTICINO is chemically a sedimentary limestone that has a very long excavation history of over 2000 years.

Its most important references are the coating of famous monuments in Italy, such as the Altare della Patria in Rome, and abroad, such as the White House (Washington) or the Statue of Liberty (New York) in the United States of America.
